Claim Analysis

Insofar as the variables can take on non-integer values, it is assumed that they are intended to represent averages over all of the molecules in the sample.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 8 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the elements. See MPEP § 2172.01. Claim 8 is directed to a method of preparing matted plastics but it is notable that the siloxane alone will not provide the matte effect. Indeed, Applicant indicates that a separate matting agent is required to impart this appearance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Schilling et al., U.S. patent # 6,015,920. Schilling discloses a continuous process of making organosilicon products via a hydrosilylation approach that, of course, entails recycling unreacted starting materials. The favored olefins to be hydrosilylated are those outlined in column 2, lines 14-20. Relevant to the present discussion, 1-octadecene is mentioned. Favored siloxanes are those disclosed in claim 5 among which include nontetramethylsiloxane isomers and undecamethylpentasiloxane isomers. In the case that the former is reacted with 1-octadecene, a polymer adhering to formula (I) where "a" = 1 and "b" = 1 is obtained. A reaction involving the latter siloxane and 1-octadecene yields a polymer adhering to formula (I) where "a" = 1 and "b" = 2.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3-7 and 10-12 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. Claims 8 and 9 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

There are numerous documents in the prior art that teach dimethyl-alkylmethylsiloxane copolymers wherein the alkyl group is a long chain hydrocarbon but, in all those instances, the total number of repeat units "a" and "b" greatly exceeds the quantities allowed by the claim. Schilling is silent as to the applications of the products suggested by the reference and it would not be obvious in the Examiner's estimation to coat them on molds. At best, it would be obvious to try using these compounds as release agents.
